

BIOGRAPHY OF SARA DENNE-BOLTON

Currently Sara Denne-Bolton is working for World Learning for Business in Vermont as the personal English language trainer of the Director General of the International Olympics Committee. From 2001 to 2003 she was a Senior English Language Fellow through the US State Department, teaching English, Sociolinguistics, and American Culture at Zadar University, Croatia, and training elementary to high school English teachers throughout Croatia. During this time she also gave teacher-training workshops to English teachers in Slovakia and Bosnia.

In 2000, she was an Academic Specialist to Ethiopia providing workshops in teaching English for university and college English teachers, and from 1998 to 1999 she was an English Teaching Fellow to the University of Rwanda where she designed curriculum and trained university English teachers. In the United States, she taught English in an Intensive English Program and Immigrant programs at community colleges and in refugee agencies, and trained K-12 teachers in ESL graduate programs at Seattle University and Seattle Pacific University.

Ms. Denne-Bolton holds a Master's in Adult Education with a focus on Cross-Cultural Communication from Antioch University, Seattle, Washington, and a Certificate in Teaching English as a Second Language from Edmonds Community College, Washington. Her BA in English Literature, Classical Civilization and Art History is from Trinity College, Dublin, Ireland.